ORDINANCE ILLEGAL.

Judge Daly Finds in Favor of Jacob L. Bieler.

Judge Daly yesterday decided the case of the city against J. L. Beiler for failure to pay the $1,000 license fee in favor of the defendant, holding that the brewers cannot under the law be assessed more than the $250 required under the state laws. The ordinance is held to be illegal and not in accordance with the city charter, which ohibits licenses in excess of those fixed by the state for the same business.

The Reckwood Manufacturing Company, of this city, received an order yesterday for a sawmill from the Philippine islands. It was from a private party, and not from the United States government.

Thought His Soul Could Not B Saved and Took a Dose of Strychnine.

MIND ALREADY SLIGHTLY WEAK

ROBERTS PARK REVIVAL.

Members of the Family, However, Are Not Complaining About the Meetings.

After having lived for fifty-nine years, the greater part being the life of a Christian, as he understood it, Jerome B. Knapp, of 434 North East street, temporarily crazed by the thought of eternal damnaafter listening to a sermon by Thomas G. Harrison, the evangelist, at the Roberts Park Church, killed himself about noon yesterday by taking strychnine.

Mr. Knapp had for a number of years been a member of Roberts Park Church, and had been an active worker. When the revival meetings were opened he showed much interest and became a regular attendant, with other members of his family. He was known among his friends and intimate acquaintances as an intensely religious man, but the arguments set out by Mr. Harrison made a great impression on him and led him to believe that all his efforts at right living were in vain. Mr. Knapp began to believe that he would, advertised. Come early if you damned. He talked of the matter at home, discontinued after the present season and Friday night attended the services as he was "lost." Mrs. Knapp comforted him as best she could. He spent a very restless night, and arose yesterday morning more despondent than before. He threatened to kill himself, and talked of but little else. During the forenoon he took a nap. and upon awakening began again brooding over his imaginary trouble.

Shortly before noon he went to the basement. In order to get in he pulled a staple fastening out. He remained in the basement for a few minutes, and at 11:50 came up and entered the kitchen, where his wife was working. After asking for a drink of water, which was given him, he drew an ounce vial from his pocket and put it to his mouth, swallowing a part of the contents. Mrs. Knapp and daughter tried to prevent him from swallowing the drug, but were unable to do so. Dr. Lash was called. He reached the house at 12:25, a few moments after Knapp died.

BOTTLE LABELED STRYCHNINE. The bottle from which Mr. Knapp took the drug was an ounce bottle and labeled strychnine. Members of the family said the drug was in the house and had been purchased for killing rats. It was thought that Mr. Knapp had taken some of the strychnine while in the basement, and that the drug which he took in the presence of his wife was the second dose. About onesixth of the contents of the vial was gone. Mr. Knapp afterward admitted that he had taken some of the strychnine while in the Deputy Coroner Dunlavy was called to view the body, and the statements made to him by members of the family indicated that Mr. Knapp had become temporarily crazed while brooding over thoughts occasioned by the revival meetings.

Mr. Knapp was a retired real estate dealer. He was born in 1841 at New North Portland, Me., and came to this city thirty years ago. His first wife died in 1886 and he remarried in 1891. He served with the Twenty-eighth Maine Regiment during the civil war. Besides his wife he leaves a sis-Members of the family denied last night that they had complained bitterly of the revival services, as was stated by an afternoon paper. They also said that there had been for some time a little indication that Mr. Knapp's mind was failing gradually, and that in his weakened mental condition the excitement of the revival was too much for him to withstand.

Mr. Harrison Couldn't Be Seen.

A Journal reporter who called to see Rev. Thomas G. Harrison about the Knapp case last night was unable to get an audience with the boy preacher. He ives at the Hotel English, with his mother. The latter declared that her son had retired and could not be seen when the reporter asked for him. "It is very important that I should see him," said the reporter. "You can't see him to-night," replied the mother; "he is not very well and has retired." "But I am sure he would get up if he knew what was wanted," pleaded the reporter. "No; you can't see him to-night," said the woman, firmly. The reporter left the hotel moralizing and much astonished at the attitude of the Harrisons.

COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS.

Appropriations Made and Voting Machines Discussed.

The new County Council organized yesterday with N. S. Byram as president and A. H. Nordyke vice president. An ordinance was introduced to allow $1,000 to cover the deficit in the payment of election expenses. The allowance made was $20,-441.73, which was about $1,000 short of the actual expenses. Another ordinance appropriating $180 to pay Ed Hugg, clerk in the probate department, to cover the lack of a sufficient appropriation for that purpose was introduced, and another provided for of Charities.

The Council will convene to-morrow. when the question of adopting voting machines will be considered. The former County Council refused to take up the question, although the members expressed themselves as favorable to the adoption of machines, because there is no provision by statute for that method of voting. It was thought the introduction of machines without a provision of that kind would lead to complications, contests and litigation. As there is a session of the Legislature intervening between now and the next election something may be done.

TAGGART ON BANKS'S BOND.

The Notorious Saloon Keeper Released After Night in Jail.

After a dozen or more attempts to secure acceptances of bail for John Banks, charged with corrupting voters, who was arrested on a grand jury warrant, he was released about 6 o'clock last night on bond of $3,000 signed by Mayor Thomas Taggart and Deputy City Attorney Bell.

Yesterday Albert Zearing called at the jail several times and took to that place nine men who went there to furnish bail, but all were refused, after which Taggart and Bell went to Banks's rescue.

Deputy Sheriff Koerner complained last night that an afternoon paper charged him with refusing to accept bond for Banks after 10 o'clock Friday night on account of the lateness of the hour, when nis reason for not allowing them to take Banks out was that he did not consider the bond offered sufficient security, for the reason that Zearing and Thienes were already on other bonds in similar cases.

THE Y. M. C. A. LECTURE COURSE MAY BE DISCONTINUED.

Called Meeting of the Members to Discuss the Subject-A Deficit Last Year.

despite anything he could do, be eternally ment course is in serious danger of being comes to an end. This was the subject of the "G. B. Q.," or "Great Big Question," which uniquely designed and worded circulars announced would be discussed at a meeting in the auditorium of the association's building last night.

> An interesting programme was given be fore the serious business of the evening was taken up. The first number was a song by the Imperial Quintet, a talented local organization, made up of Everett E. Berry and W. H. Holton, first tenors; F M. Ketcham, second tenor and director; R. H. Johnson, first bass, and William F. Schelke, second bass. James M. Bradford, the well-known retired actor, followed in two recitations. The last number was a trombone solo by Master Charles Arthur Lewis, the former boy elocutionist, who entertained Governor Mount at the executive department in the Statehouse on several occasions during the first year of his term. Each one of the entertainers was given an enthusiastic encore.

The "G. B. Q." was stated by Secretary Howser in a very brief speech. Mr. Howser sketched rapidly and tersely the growth A., and recalled of the lecture and entertainment course in former years. He said, however, that during the past few seasons there has been a marked falling off in both attendance and interest, so that unless there is a great change before the present series of entertainments has been concluded. the enterprise will have to be abandoned. Secretary Howser's note of warning was echoed by President Whitehead, who stated that he had been connected with this department of the Y. M. C. A. work ever follows: since it was started, thirteen years ago, and that up to the last three years the association had made money-sometimes as much as $400 on a course-but that the balance has been "on the other side of the ledger" since that time, last year's deficit being $400. Messrs. Howser and Whitehead made an urgent appeal to the large body of young men present to bestir themselves and make an effort to raise the sale of season tickets for the current season above present mark-350. "Why," said Mr. Howser, "you would be ashamed to have it stated in to-morrow's papers that only 350 season tickets have been sold this year, when in other years the sale has gone as high as 800 or 900."

INTERURBAN FRANCHISE.

The County Commissioners Take Favorable Action.

The County Commissioners yesterday granted a franchise to Nathaniel N. Morris and George C. Webster for an interurban electric railway line along the Nabe in running order by March 1, 1902. Mr. Morris says the road will be begun early in the spring. The first point will be Plainfield, and from there the road may soon be built to Greencastle. The company already has a franchise in Hendricks county. The line will be a western continuation of the

The work of remodeling the building is being pushed. Already $15,000 has teen spent on the improvement. The cost of the site and old building was $30,000. The first floor is taken up with offices, reception rooms, the library and dining rooms. The capacity of the dining room will be 156 at one time, and will be increased shortly to accommodate 200. At present about 400 women can be served at luncheon. The second floor will contain the gym nosium, which will be complete in every particular, and shower baths, eight in number. The third floor will contain several bedrooms, for the accommodation of women stopping in the city for a short time, a large room, which has been leased to the Young Women's Sketching Club, and quarters for the servants. The management has given out that donations of serviceable articles, such as will be needed $100 to pay expenses of the County Board | in the new building, will be thankfully ac-

May Join Mine Workers.

It is understood that all workers about coal mines will be taken into the United Mine Workers' organization. The present strike of the hoisting engineers may further the plan, as that organization is but a year old and the membership limited. The blacksmiths and firemen are other branches that will come into the miners' union. The United Mine Workers do not object to taking in these branches of the trade providing they will comply with agreements made at joint conventions.

A call has been issued for a meeting of the Republican State committee next Thursday at headquarters in the Majestic building. It is not the purpose to keep the Democratic headquarters open very long after the State committee has had a meeting. Committeeman Neal, of the Ninth district, who is suffering with typhoid fever at his home in Lebanon, is reported as improving, and the meeting of the committee will probably not be held until he is able to attend.

The committee having in charge the arrangements for the concert has prepared a programme of unusual excellence, which will be rendered by local artists. This will be accompanied by appropriate music. The concert will last until 10 o'clock,

STORY OF HUMAN INTEREST.

It Is Related by Warden Shideler, of the State Prison.

Warden Shideler, of the State prison, was the central figure in a group of friends who sat chatting at the Denison Hotel the other evening.

"Warden," asked a newspaper man, 'don't you see a great deal of human interest in the scenes that take place about "Yes," said the warden, "I see much that is full of human interest. Here is a sample. On a Sunday last summer one of the railroads ran an excursion to Michigan City, and as is usually the case when excursions come to town, a large crowd congregated at the prison gates. Sunday is not a visiting day, and in order to get rid of the numerous requests I knew would come for admission, I left the prison shortjust sat down to dinner, when there came a timid knock at the door. I opened it, and there stood an old woman, her smail trembled as she asked if I was the warden. I said I was, and then she made her re and she will certainly be admitted.' one else came forward and I took the old mother into the prison. I did not wish her to leave the place with the sound of clanging cell doors in her ears, so I brought her boy into the office. This was about 1 o'clock, and at 4 I went back. I didn't lature a bill changing the manner of elect-ing county superintendents, and backing the bill with a strong lobby. It is pro-the bill with a strong lobby. It is pro-eyes. 'It's 4 o'clock,' I said, meaning to enough with her son. 'Why,' she said, 'my train does not go until 6.' I went away and left them there and did not return again until a few minutes before the excursion was to leave. Then I had my big double-seated carriage hitched up and the top thrown back. I took my driver and we went over to the prison. I took the old lady in the carriage and she rode to believe that each election is tainted with the train in state. A few days later I took her boy over to my house and gave him a position there, where he is to-day. He's still a prisoner, of course. Some time ago the old mother came back to see her boy. I said to her as soon as she arrived: 'When you were here before I sent in for your son; this time I will send out for him.'

She was trembling with delight and excitement when I told her where he was.
"The son is there for life," continued the warden, "and if I can lighten the mother's heart and cause the boy to feel less bitter-ly against the institution that confines him why should I not do it."
